

Is Your Business Stuck?

Now, take a moment & to ask yourself another question – “Who’s really stuck?”

Is it really your business... or you?

If you don't move, I can guarantee that you & your business will stay right where you are!!

At Brad Huckel & Co, we want to help you take the steps to go where you want to go.

Here's a few hints to get you started on your journey:-

A Quit the excuses.

All the excuses and explanations in the world are not going to do you any good. They won't add any value to your life or improve the quality of it by even the slightest margin. To fulfill your calling and get where you wish to go in life requires more than just thinking and talking. These feats require focused and sustained action. And the good news is, you're perfectly capable of taking whatever action is necessary. You just have to choose to actually do it.

No one else can succeed for you on your behalf. The life you live is the life you build for yourself. There are so many possibilities to choose from, and so many opportunities for you to bridge the gap between where you are and where you want to be. Now is the moment to actually step forward.

When you let go of the past, and move forward, you in no way change the past, you change the future.

B Give up the idea that you don't have what it takes.

In the recent Steve Jobs movie, Steve was quoted as saying “When you grow up you tend to get told that world is the way that it is, and that your life is to live your life inside the world and try not to get into too much trouble. Maybe get an education, get a job, make some money, and have a family.

But life can be a lot broader than that when you realise one simple thing: everything around us that we call life was made up of people that are no smarter than you.”

Now here's thought. You do have exactly what it takes.

Will it be easy? Absolutely not! Nobody is going to blindside you and hit you as hard as life will. Sometimes life will beat you to the ground, and keep you there if you let it. But it's not about how hard life can hit you; it's about how hard you can be hit and continue to get up & move forward.

Another name for that is resilience. And frankly, if you didn't have it, you'd be dead already. So let's move right along with the next point.

C Give up focusing on what's wrong, and start noticing what's right.

In this life, what you see depends entirely on what you are looking for.

Are you good at making lists? Then stop coming up with those lists in your head of all the bad stuff – all the reasons it won't work, and start making a list of the right stuff.

And here's a bizarre, way out there-type thought. How about grabbing your smartphone right now & jotting down the first few items on a new list – one containing the steps to (ie not away from) your desired destination.

And you do not need ideal circumstances to move forward. The happiest and most successful people do not live with a certain set of circumstances, but rather with a certain set of attitudes. Choosing to be positive and grateful for what you have now is going to determine how you're going to live the rest of your life.

Nothing to be grateful about? Wife/husband, kids & dog all hate you?

How about you start with the fact that if you've got food in your fridge, clothes on your back, a roof over your head & a place to sleep, then you're already better off than 90% of people on the face of the planet. Hmmmm?

D Give up the tendency to get too caught up in other people's judgments and opinions.

Honestly, the biggest prison you will likely ever live in is your fear of what other people think. You cannot let other people tell you who you are or what you want. You have to decide that for yourself. When you're making big decisions, remember, what you think of yourself and your life is more important than what people think of you.

The key here is to remember that it's OK to listen to others sometimes, but not at the full expense of your own intuition. Because throughout your lifetime there will be many times when the world gets real quiet and the only thing left is the beat of your own heart. So you'd better learn the sound of it, otherwise you'll never understand what it's telling you.

Someone once shared a line with me that I've never forgotten - What others think of me is none of my business.

When you spend too much time concentrating on everyone else's perception of you, or who everyone else wants you to be, you eventually forget who you truly are.
